Caught In New Legal Crossfire

Wallace Faces U.S. Court Over Closing Of Schools

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Gov. George Wallace was caught today in a new legal crossfire over the closing of Alabama schools facing desegregation.

Resentment and criticism of Wallace's actions mounted, while he kept secret any plans for continuing the long fight against federal court orders.

Wallace ran into these rapid-fire legal developments Friday: —A federal judge ordered the governor to show why he should not be restrained from interfering with Birmingham schools.

—Negroes filed suit for an order restraining Wallace from blocking desegregation of four Huntsville schools where state troopers enforced a Wallace closing order Friday.

—A federal court hearing was set on a motion by Negro attorneys to force the school board here to reopen the schools which are scheduled to accept five Negroes.

First of the court fights is set for Monday when U.S. Dist. Judge H. H. Grooms will consider the request for a restraining order against Wallace.

Attorneys for 6-year-old Sonny Hereford, Huntsville Negro, asked Grooms to prohibit Wallace from barring the boy from a white school.

Young Hereford and three other Negroes, along with 2,000 white pupils, were turned away from the schools ordered shut down for one day by Wallace.

A Wednesday hearing was set by U.S. Dist. Judge Seymour H. Lynne on a move for an injunction against the Birmingham school board. Negro attorneys asked that the board be ordered to reopen three schools closed after violence here Wednesday night in which one person was killed and 20 hurt.

Two Negro boys enrolled at a Birmingham elementary school but have not attended any classes. Three other Negroes are to enter two white high schools.

Attorneys for the Negro boys, Dwight and Floyd Armstrong, asked Lynne to issue the show-cause order to Wallace. Lynne set a Thursday hearing.

When Wallace defied court orders last June, Lynne enjoined the governor from physically interfering with desegregation of the University of Alabama. Wallace made a promised doorway stand but yielded to federalized National Guardsmen.

The governor lost his latest legal encounter with Negro attorneys with a ruling by three federal judges that violence or the threat of it is not a basis for closing the Birmingham schools.

This decision was handed down by Judges Walter Gwin of Tuscaloosa, John Minor Wisdom of New Orleans and Griffin Bell of Atlanta. They rejected a suit filed by six white parents, backed by Wallace.

School officials in Huntsville planned to start the fall term Monday. School board attorney Joe Payne said Wallace had promised not to interfere.

Indications were that two Negroes would enter a white school in Mobile next week. State troopers were poured into the port city by Wallace but the Negroes did not show up Friday as scheduled.

Defied by school officials in Huntsville and Tuskegee, where troopers closed a school, Wallace came under fire Friday from several directions.

Parents at Huntsville schools of cutting down overseas spending. This has included examination of manpower levels abroad.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, brought up the dollar drain Friday when he asked defense officials about the possibility of bringing back some military men and their dependents from overseas.

Russell, a Georgia Democrat, suggested that the ability of an expanding U.S. military airlift to rush troops to Europe in hours might make it possible to cut the big outlays involved in maintaining U.S. forces at many overseas stations.

"minor personnel adjustments" during this fiscal year.

The gold dollar drain has prompted the Defense Department to look for every possible means of cutting down overseas spending.

Sen. Russell said he will outline his reasons for opposition during debate starting Monday on the treaty banning nuclear testing except underground.

His announcement followed similar ones from Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the armed forces preparedness investigating subcommittee, and Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a member of the subcommittee and the parent group.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., a member of the full committee, told an interviewer he, too, is inclined to oppose ratification.

"Unless I am presented evidence between now and the time the Senate votes that will allay my fears, I shall vote against the treaty," Byrd said.

Democratic and Republican leaders are expected to work shoulder-to-shoulder for ratification.

The opposition is expected to muster its biggest vote on attempts to write reservations into the treaty which would require its renegotiation with the Soviet Union. Great Britain and more than 80 other signers.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., will offer a reservation to postpone the effectiveness of the treaty until the Soviets remove military equipment and personnel from Cuba.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., has said he will offer another making clear that under the treaty the United States can use its nuclear weapons at its own choosing in self-defense or the defense of its allies.

Stennis, in a Senate speech, said that closed committee testimony by military and scientific experts convinced him that there is "cause for great concern and alarm about the security implications of the proposed treaty."

He said his subcommittee will provide a report and summary of these hearings before the Senate votes.

He explained that charges of illegal possession of liquor and gaming device and illegal sale of liquor filed against Ann Bartolovich, an employee, were dismissed by Squire Bellanco and there is no legal grounds for State Police to retain custody of the equipment. Squire Bellanco had ordered the return when he dismissed the charges.

Notni filed the suit after claiming Corp. Tighe had refused to give up the items taken in the raid.

Cheat At Bingo
CINCINNATI (AP)—Police filed no charges against two women arrested for cheating at bingo, but are circulating the women's pictures among organizers of the games. Detectives say the women made thousands of dollars by erasing the numbers on bingo cards and printing on new numbers while a game was being called.

Mansfield Still Expects Treaty OK

Overwhelming Nod Predicted Despite Russell Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says he still expects overwhelming Senate approval of the limited nuclear test ban treaty despite the announced opposition of Chairman Richard B. Russell and some members of his Senate Armed Services Committee.

Russell, a Georgia Democrat, said Friday that "after long and careful study, I find that I cannot conscientiously support this treaty."

The opposition came as no surprise to Mansfield.

Approval by two-thirds of those voting is required for ratification. If all 100 senators vote, at least 67 votes will be needed for approval when the showdown comes after an expected two weeks of debate.

Usually reliable sources said checks indicate the opposition will be unable to rally more than 20 votes.

Russell said he will outline his reasons for opposition during debate starting Monday on the treaty banning nuclear testing except underground.

His announcement followed similar ones from Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the armed forces preparedness investigating subcommittee, and Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a member of the subcommittee and the parent group.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., a member of the full committee, told an interviewer he, too, is inclined to oppose ratification.

Reds Protest To U.S. China Signing Of Pact
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has protested to the United States the signing of the limited nuclear test ban treaty by Nationalist China in Washington last month.

The protest appeared to be designed to placate the Communist Chinese who described Nationalist China's signature as an "act of betrayal" by the Soviet leaders toward Peking.

The official Tass news agency reported Friday the protest was handed to the State Department with a reminder that Moscow's non-recognition of President Chiang Kai-shek's government was made clear to the United States and Britain when the treaty was being negotiated.

Dinsio Jailed Under Bonds Of $200,000

Suspect In Weirton Holdup Now Facing Columbus Robbery

A 26-year-old Youngstown man already facing indictments in Ohio and West Virginia, is held under bonds totaling $200,000 on charges involving a supermarket burglary here.

He is Amil A. Dinsio, accused of burglary and forcing entry to a safe.

Dinsio was nabbed by police investigating burglars who used a radio receiver to monitor police calls and walkie-talkies to keep in touch with each other while they worked on a drug counter safe in the supermarket.

Police said they took Dinsio into custody as he was seated in his automobile near the market, and with a radio receiver in his car.

Police had gone to the supermarket after burglars tripped an alarm. Dinsio was the only one apprehended, but officers said they were looking for several other men. Loss from the safe was not determined.

Dinsio is under indictment in Hancock County in connection with the theft of an old coin collection last March from Gene Costalas, operator of Gene's amusement center in Weirton.

The Mahoning County Grand Jury last November indicted Dinsio and his three brothers, James, William and Vincent, on charges of receiving stolen property in connection with a large-scale burglary ring that was broken up in March, 1962.

Dinsio and two Mahoning County companions have appealed to the 7th District Court of Appeals against extradition ordered by Columbiana County Common Pleas Court at Lisbon for return

Cooler Due Sunday After Showers Tonight
There's no getting around it—the Tri-State District apparently is in for a miserable weekend—weatherwise.

The sun was out this forenoon, dissipating a heavy early morning ground fog, but cloudy skies were due with scattered showers this afternoon and tonight, followed by cooler temperatures Sunday—and cloudy.

Today's warmup with a high of 74 to 80 expected will be followed by night temperatures in the 50's. The downtown had a 53 at 6 a.m. today.

With autumn officially only two weeks away, the Ohio Valley can expect a steady decline in both day and night temperatures although the first frost period is a month off. The seasons change Sept. 23.

Copters Pick 27 Men Off Sea Towers

QUONSET POINT, R.I. (AP)—The 27 men plucked from two storm-battered Texas towers off New England were back on solid ground today, asking, "What was all the fuss about?"

"It wasn't blowing any harder than usual," said Francis P. Flanagan, the Army Corps of Engineers resident supervisor aboard Tower 3.

"The tower will be there tomorrow and the next day," Flanagan said Friday night when he and other evacuees were interviewed at Quonset Point Naval Air Station.

Later the men dispersed to their homes throughout the Northeast.

Most said they will return to the towers Monday. But there were some dissenters.

The steel structures that tower above the Atlantic once were part of the air defense early warning system. They have been declared obsolete and are being dismantled.

The 27 men evacuated by five Navy helicopters are employees of Lipsett Inc., a subsidiary of Luria Bros. of New York, which has the contract to dismantle the towers.

Fifteen were taken from Tower 2, located 100 miles southeast of Cape Cod, and 12 from Tower 3 some 50 miles east of Cape Cod.

2 Negro Boys Killed

Saigon Police Arrest 300 Children In School Revolt

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Saigon combat police dragged off about 300 rock-throwing, jeering children today as a school rebellion swept the city.

Most of those arrested were under 15 years old.

Helmeted police charged into the Vo Truong Toan Boys School and the adjoining Trung Vuong Girls School, dragging students, many carrying their books, into a fleet of army trucks.

Students screamed from windows at American newsmen: "President Kennedy supports Ngo Dinh Diem beating and arresting students."

Children staged noisy anti-government demonstrations in at least a half dozen other schools, including the Marie Curie and Jean Jacques Rousseau High Schools attended mainly by the children of high ranking civil

Azdell Faces Trial Again In Tax Charges

Man Jailed 5 Days In July Scheduled For New Hearing

William F. Azdell of Harding Ave., who was sentenced to a five-day jail term in early July for two alleged violations of the city income tax ordinance, was served with a summons Friday ordering him to appear in Municipal Court again Thursday at 9 a.m., accused of the same two violations.

Azdell, superintendent of mails at the Post Office, was one of nine on whom Bailiff Wilbert P. Taylor served the summonses yesterday, requiring them to appear for trial on charges filed by Tax Commissioner D. G. Wilkinson.

As in Azdell's case, all the defendants are due before Judge Samuel M. Chertoff at 9 Thursday morning.

Azdell is accused of failure to file a final return on his 1962 earnings or income and failure to file an estimate of his 1963 income. He drew the five-day jail term July 3 when Judge Chertoff convicted him of the same two violations. Azdell had pleaded not guilty.

The other defendants are: John Bell, 1160 Harker Ave.; Robert Douglass, 1011 Locust St.; Jack L. Fair, 662 Riley Ave.; Charles Hayes, 1210 Erie St.

Don Black, 1546 Pennsylvania Ave.; James Arkadiou, doing business as the Green Mill Restaurant, 620 Dresden Ave.; Joseph L. Perrin, doing business as San-

U.S. Peace Corps Gives Assistance

American Vessels Being Rushed With Medical Supplies

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—A team of U.S. Peace Corps doctors, nurses and firefighting experts flew to the southern state of Parana today to help battle fires raging through tinder dry pine forests. At least 250 persons are estimated to have perished and 300,000 others lost their homes, according to reports reaching here.

The U.S. embassy said U.S. Navy ships participating in maneuvers would be diverted to the Parana port of Paranaguá with medical supplies and equipment.

The Peace Corps team was headed by U.S. embassy counselor Gordon Mein. The team carried medical supplies and blood plasma.

Officials in the state capital of Curitiba reported that about 500 persons have been injured in the fires.

A U.S. spokesman said firefighting experts from the United States also would fly to Parana. They will include Nerly Laubem, head of the fire control division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Parana is Brazil's most important coffee-producing state.

Gov. Ney Braga, who appealed for outside assistance, said the situation in the drought-plagued state was "much worse than you can imagine."

Forty-nine bodies have been recovered and the death toll probably will go much higher, Col. Italo Cortes, director of the firefighters, reported from Curitiba, the state capital 200 miles Southwest of Sao Paulo.

New Cave-In Slows Effort To Find Bova

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP) — The search for Louis Bova, all but hopeless now, suffered another setback Friday when a new cave-in occurred in the mine where Bova and two others were trapped by an earlier fall.

With a roar of falling rock, earth and coal, a section of the east side of the mine slope plunged through weakened timbers, creating a subsidence some 35 feet in diameter at the surface.

The collapse confirmed the fears of state officials who had decided not to risk sending any men into the weakened slope after Bova, 54, David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 28, were trapped last Aug. 13. Instead they had used a novel rescue technique, drilling holes from the surface straight down to the mine more than 300 feet below. Fellin and Throne were located by one of these holes and rescued through another after two weeks underground.

City Motorist Hurt In Florence Mishap
Jerald Bishop, 20, of Glenmoor was in "fair" condition today at the Washington (Pa.) Hospital with injuries received when his car hit a parked auto and shoved it into a house at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Florence.

Bishop was traveling east on Pa. Route 18 when he lost control and smashed into a 1963 sedan owned by Charles Wright of Florence, which was parked in his driveway.

The Wright car then was shoved into the foundation of his home.

Damage to the foundation was estimated at $1,000. Damage to the Wright auto was set at $3,500 and $500 to Bishop's car.

The Carnegie Barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police said charges are pending.

Due Return Before End Of Year

Army Expects To Bring 3,000 Back From Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is expected to bring an armored cavalry regiment — about 3,000 or 4,000 men — back from Europe before the end of the year.

This would cut from four to three the number of tank-equipped armored cavalry regiments in West Germany.

Their mission is to operate as a screen along the Iron Curtain, to contest any invading Soviet force and delay it until the rest of the U.S. 7th Army and Allied units move into position.

During the Berlin crisis buildup nearly two years ago, the United States sent an additional armored cavalry regiment—the 3rd from Ft. Meade, Md.—to Germany.

It is not certain whether the 3rd or one of the other regiments will be brought home.

Secretary of Defense Robert S.

McNamara has said repeatedly that the United States does not plan to reduce its combat strength in Europe below a force equivalent to six divisions.

The withdrawal of an armored cavalry regiment would leave five divisions, a brigade in Berlin and three armored cavalry regiments. The Army considers the equivalent of a division.

The Army shipped more than 40,000 additional men to build up the 7th Army for an anticipated showdown with the Soviets over Berlin in late 1961. Most were rear area elements.

This brought Army strength in Europe to 270,000 men.

Last winter, the Defense Department said about 15,000 of these men had returned to the United States gradually over a period of time. It said there might be

2 In Unprecedented Victories

Miss America For 1964 Will Be Crowned Tonight

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Beauties from Alabama and the District of Columbia held an unprecedented double victory in the talent and swimsuit competition today as the Miss America pageant entered its final stage.

Both Judy Short of Alabama and Rosanne Tueller of the District of Columbia took top honors in the swimsuit and talent competitions which ended Friday night.

Judy, 18, a blonde from Birmingham, played a violin arrangement of "Hora Staccato" on the marimba to capture first honors in the talent division.

Judy, a 5-7½ Birmingham Southern College freshman whose measurements are 36-22-36½, won the judges' votes in the swimsuit competition Wednesday.

Miss District of Columbia, a 20-year-old Brigham Young University junior with measurements of 35-23½-35, captured swimsuit honors Friday night.

Rosanne, who lives in McLean, Va., won the talent competition Thursday night with a jazzy French interpretive dance of "I Love Paris."

Never in the 37-year history of the pageant had two contestants won both the talent and swimsuit competitions in the preliminary rounds although there have been many times when one girl won both titles.

The last double winner was Nancy Fleming of Michigan, who became Miss America of 1961.

Winning the preliminary events does not necessarily mean a contestant will become Miss America, nor does it guarantee a place in the semifinals.

Results of the evening gown competition have been kept secret as have names of the girls who finished second, third, fourth and fifth in all the categories.

Points also were awarded for personality and poise during breakfast meetings with the judges.

When all the points are totaled tonight, 10 semifinalists will remain from the 32 contestants representing all the states, the District of Columbia and New York City.

All previous points earned will be discarded and the semifinalists will compete again in the swimsuit, evening gown and talent divisions.

The judges will select five finalists, one of whom will succeed lovely Jacqueline Mayer of Sandusky, Ohio.

About midnight, one of the girls will walk the 100-foot convention hall ramp, to the strains of "There She Goes, Miss America," into a Cinderella world worth a $10,000 scholarship and an estimated $75,000 personal appearance contract.

Crashes Hurt Man, Woman

A city man and a New Waterford woman were injured in separate one-car accidents early today and a West Point farmer was hurt in a collision just before noon Friday, according to the State Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Helen Curl, 55, of New Waterford was admitted to Salem City Hospital with back injuries and possible arm and leg injuries when her car crashed on Route 164 a mile north of Lisbon at 2:45 a. m. today.

Officers said the woman was headed south when she ran off the highway, struck and embankment and then crashed into a utility pole. She was cited for speeding in excess of road conditions, officers said.

John Nicholson, 24, of 707 Avondale St. was involved in a crash at 2:40 a. m. on Route 170 at the intersection with St. Clair Ave. Ext.

Headed east, he failed to observe a stop sign, crossed the highway and hit a stone wall. Nicholson suffered a laceration of the nose and facial scratches. He also was cited for speeding in excess of road conditions.

Thomas Candler, 54, of West Point was hurt Friday at 11:20 a. m. when his tractor was struck in the rear by a car driven by Jay Tice, 26, of Wellsville R. D. 1 on Route 45 a half mile west of Township Rd. 1002.

A 42-year-old Leetonia area man was in "poor" condition today at Salem City Hospital with head injuries suffered when his car and a tractor-trailer truck collided beneath a traffic signal on Route 14 near Columbiana Friday morning.

James Kridler of Leetonia R. D. 1 received cranial injuries, concussion and lacerations and abrasions of the head when his car and the rig driven by Howard J. McElhaney, 23, of Imperial, Pa., rammed at the intersection of Route 164 at the northern limits of Columbiana.

The patrol said Kridler was headed south on Route 164 and the mishap occurred at 1:15 a. m. McElhaney was unhurt.

Officers are continuing an investigation.

Francis M. Gardner, 42, of Lisbon R. D. 4 suffered cuts and abrasions when his car and a pickup truck collided on Depot Rd. about four miles south of Salem at 9:45 p. m.

Officers said the truck, driven by Dale Leroy Ritchie, 45, of Salem R. D. 3, made a left turn and Gardner's sedan struck the rear of the truck. Ritchie suffered a shoulder injury. Gardner was charged with reckless operation.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What can I do about white rings on furniture?

A. Erase these by removing the very top layer of finish with a mild abrasive or solvent. Try rubbing the spot with each of the following, working down the list until the ring disappears: Cigarette ash and lemon juice; camphor and camphorated oil; linseed oil; turpentine; linseed oil and turpentine; linseed oil, turpentine, and rottenstone. You may have to restore the finish with a varnish-and-oil treatment.

Q. How can I do a good job of cleaning decorative candles?

A. By sponging them with a piece of absorbent cotton dampened with alcohol.

Q. How can I make some steel and aluminum pans stain-free?

A. Try boiling water and a piece of aluminum foil in them.

Q. How can I clean unglazed ceramic tiles, such as used on bathroom floors?

A. Always wipe up immediately any spilled medicines, paint, or other such substances — then scour the spot with an abrasive powder. Unglazed tiles are very absorbent, and such stains can penetrate deeply and be very difficult to remove. These tiled floors usually can be kept clean by wiping with a damp cloth or sponge, or water to which a softener has been added.

Q. How can I make a good job of cleaning enameled woodwork?

A. Try using a mixture of one cup of kerosene, one cup of vinegar, and a half-cup of water in a bottle. Shake thoroughly, apply to the woodwork with a soft cloth, and follow with a dry cloth.

Q. How can I remove starch that has collected on my iron?

A. Rub the hot iron over a piece of brown wrapping paper on which you've sprinkled salt.

Q. How can I remedy tarnished brass?

A. A lemon rind dipped in salt will remove most corrosion or tarnish spots on brass.

Expatriate Ezra Pound

Hopes To Visit U.S.

VENICE, Italy (AP)—Expatriate Ezra Pound says he hopes to visit his native United States again soon because things have changed.

The controversial 77-year-old poet was indicted on treason charges in World War II for pro-fascist broadcasts in Italy but was never brought to trial on grounds he was mentally incompetent to defend himself. He was confined to a mental institution in Washington, D.C., from 1946 to 1958, when he returned to Italy.

Pound insisted he had committed no betrayal and in April 1958 the treason charges were dismissed.

Comeback Story Of Pottery Told

The amazing story of the resurgence of East Palestine through the comeback of the W. S. George Pottery Co. was related to the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel by George McKinstry, new president of the reorganized pottery firm.

McKinstry traced the phenomenal change in the last six years from the point in 1957 when the George firm was employing only 15 people and was on the verge of bankruptcy to the present booming operation of the plants now leased to Royal China Co.

Street Work Will Continue

The Ohio Valley Paving Corp. notified Safety-Service Director Robert Owen late this morning that it will be unable to finish applying the last two courses today for 42 streets included in the city's low-cost surfacing program.

The contractor's crew had expected to work all day today to complete the project, but found it would be unable to finish all of the streets, the director said.

The St. Clairsville firm was completing work in the Beechwood area and then expected to move its equipment to Maplewood and Gardendale areas. The company expects to wind up the work in West End and Pleasant Heights, the director said.

A prime coat was applied to the sections of the 42 streets in the program and the crew returned Thursday for the finishing courses of asphalt and slag.

Meanwhile, a street department crew was working in Pleasant Heights today to apply seal - coating to blacktopped streets to protect them against water and ice damage.

Seal - coating is to be applied to Spring Grove Ave., Wyoming Ave., Idaho Ave. and Olmhausen St., the director said, but the Pleasant Heights streets may not be completed today because the crew was to quit at noon.

Budget Hearing Held, But Without Audience

A public hearing on the city budget for 1964 was scheduled Friday at 4 p.m. in Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate's office, but no citizen appeared to examine the figures.

Council gave unanimous approval to the figures Aug. 28. They estimate an income of $519,055 for the general fund next year, down $13,820 from the $532,875 the city will spend for the same purposes this year.

The public hearing is a formality required by state law. The figures have been open to public inspection for the last 10 days. The budget now will be certified to the County Budget Commission at Lisbon.

It has been at least 22 years since any resident appeared for the budget hearing.

The bailiff said a 10th defendant could not be found at the address listed for him by the income tax office. He is Frank White, 470 Mulberry St.

In addition to Azdell, three others are accused of two violations — failure to file a final return on 1962 and failure to file an estimate of 1963 earnings. They are Hayes, Black and Arkadiou. White, the defendant who could not be located, is named on the same two charges.

One violation each is charged to the other defendants: Bell, Douglass and DeHaven, no final return for 1962, and Perrin and Fair, no estimate on 1963 income.

Wilkinson filed the charges Thursday, but the names of the defendants were not released until the summonses had been served.

Yesterday's action brings to 30 the number hauled before the court in recent weeks for alleged violations of the tax law.

All The Unbitten Dogs

In dozens of southern schools, segregation is going out of existence quietly. When it happens, no news is made.

No ranting politicians say things for quotation in press and television interviews. Educators and citizens with a sense of responsibility for the good name of their communities do methodically and quietly what they know needs to be done. No news is made, only progress.

This is the standard pattern of news in every category. It is the exceptional, not the usual, that gets attention.

MILLIONS of teen-agers go about the business of growing up without a false step. A few run amuck and give the teenage population a black eye.

Millions of Americans keep their affairs in good order, work hard at their jobs, pay their bills and comprise the solid middle class that is the backbone of representative democracy. A few choose to live outside the law. They make news. All others read and hear about the baddies.

A handful of people in every society can be counted on to make the headlines while the myriads make the wealth that keeps things going. It's the same everywhere.

If news is defined as a man biting a dog—and the idea has a certain amount of merit—that puts all the unbitten dogs and the unbiting men out of the running.

BUT WE DO well to remember they are in existence because they represent what is right and normal.

Ranting politicians and racist agitators actually are exceptional, though there are days when they manage to make the impression they are the majority.

That's what they want to do. It's a shame the news they make helps them do it.

Love Us, Love Our Chickens

It seems more like comic opera than statesmanship that lets chickens upset high hopes for easier trade between the United States and the European Economic Community.

These hopes were described glowingly by President Kennedy in 1962 when he was thumping the tub for the Trade Expansion Act. His description was received glowingly, too. His fellow Americans were captivated by the idea of more trade, more profit and more benefits for all through international cooperation.

But it's interesting now to note that the rift already had been discovered in the loof and never was concealed. President Kennedy said repeatedly in 1962 that agricultural production would be the problem.

EVERY commentator who looked at the prospect of getting along with the EEC stressed the difficulty that would arise if the EEC improved agricultural production to the point of being in competition with U.S. agricultural commodities.

This also was the sticking point between the six nations in the EEC. It was Britain's concern with protection for its agriculture that kept it at arm's length from the EEC and finally caused French President Charles de Gaulle to slam the door on its application for membership.

And then came the affair of the chickens. U.S. chicken producers were confronted with an EEC tariff that all but shut them out of the European market.

The United States is planning retaliation late this month or early in October unless some adjustment more favorable than anything suggested so far is forthcoming.

THE WHOLE thing is being regarded in Washington as a test of the Common Market principle—far more so than the similar case involving European-made carpets and glass last year.

That, too, turned into a battle of retaliation, but it did not threaten to turn into a trade war.

The chicken incident could set off a full-fledged war that would destroy all remaining enthusiasm for the possibilities of European economic cooperation.

If cooperation were to mean nothing but the erection of trade barriers, the United States will have nothing to gain and everything to lose.

An Admiral's Last Word

Adm. George W. Anderson, former chief of naval operations who was given a consolation appointment as ambassador to Portugal after being passed over for reappointment to the Joint Chiefs of Staff, made a memorable speech in Washington to the National Press Club before leaving for his new job.

Every U.S. taxpayer has a personal concern in the admiral's final word on his difference of opinion with the Pentagon. Not only national security but taxes are affected by the issue he described.

"Experience teaches that there are no infallible judgments with respect to national security," he said. Thus, there must be "wisdom, respect and understanding" by both the top-ranked civilian authority and the lesser but more professionally expert military authority responsible for national defense.

Adm. Anderson thinks the civilian authority headed up by Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has been over-riding military experts; that its "whiz kid" civilians have been claiming expertise in fields where they had no expertise; that civilians with the logical minds of accountants have been trying to use electronic calculators to solve problems that militarists know cannot be solved that way.

The McNamara side of the issue has been thoroughly covered in the press. The former president of the Ford Co. believes militarism is subject to cost rationalization and methodical procurement. He believes militarists must be curbed in their demands for more of everything regardless of expense.

He believes, also, in strong executive guidance of the Pentagon—and this becomes the ultimate issue, because it affronts representatives and senators jealous of their congressional authority over military spending.

Adm. Anderson, it is assumed, has spoken his last word on his side of the argument that barred him from reappointment to the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His call for "wisdom, respect and understanding" will not be easy to ignore.

Cotton Corners

Dear Nephew: Thanks for remembering us during your vacation. We thought you might want to shut us out of your mind like the rest of your work-a-day routine.

We began to wonder about the success of your radical departure from this routine when you admitted to us in your letter that you missed it, much as you disliked it.

Is this something like missing being beaten on the head with an iron rod when it stops, even though you think you will crack up if it doesn't stop?

We think we know how it is, because we also are tied to a regular routine. We resent its being interrupted, despite the fact we know it should be interrupted from time to time.

It makes us wonder whether those blind ponies they used in coal mines in the old days were better off when good-hearted souls brought them up to the surface. Did they really enjoy being taken out of their routine? Were they healthier? Did they live longer than they would have lived in the catacombs where they were accustomed to walk in eternal darkness?

We don't know the answer. We're only asking.

It's ironic, isn't it, that people should live in ruins so deep they feel out of place when they climb out of them for a few weeks each year? Did you know this is one of the problems of treating patients in insane asylums?

The patients put such a high value on the security they achieve by being in the asylum they quit wanting to get well. The same thing happens to people in hospitals. It even happens to people who get sick in bed. They like the rut they're in, despite the fact it represents illness.

Your aunt still kids me about the squawk I put up the last time I was in the hospital when they made me swing my bird legs over the side of the bed and totter around with an orderly holding me up by the scruff of the neck. I was madder than a wet hen, she insists, because I wanted to stay

by Truman Twill

sacked up. The truth is I was at death's door and in no condition to be gallivanting around—and I don't care what the croaker said.

Well, now you're back in your work-a-day rut and everything is in order. Are you happy? Or did you spend enough time away from the job to wear down a new rut? It happened to us.

When we quit working for money and began to work for fun, we found out that retirement itself turns into a routine—but with a vital difference. You don't have to follow it. You have a choice. You can stay in bed until you want to get up. You can hole up on bad days and not go outside if you don't feel like it. You have a new rut to live in—a new routine that gives you an option.

It's wonderful. Distribute our regards among your loved ones—and may all your routines be hilariously pleasant.

The huge anchorages at the two ends of the bridge now being built across the Narrows at the entrance to New York City harbor are solid monoliths of concrete and embedded steel faced with granite above water, as high as an 18-story building. The left hook in boxing was invented by James J. Corbett, onetime heavyweight champion. He had broken the knuckles of his left hand in a fight, and the healing process was so slow that he began to experiment with a hooking jab, instead of the straight jab, thus avoiding the shock of straight punching to his injured hand.

Who Needs Enemies?

Red-Planned Strikes Cripple Brazil

By Victor Riesel

It can be revealed—and should be disclosed now—that American intelligence services have discovered the newest Communist strategy for speeding revolutionary activities in Brazil through a series of general strikes.

One of these mass stoppages will be a crash maneuver to seize all control of unions handling gasoline and oil fuel supplies. Then the various Communist juntas will be in a position to paralyze that vast land. If the drive succeeds, the Communists will force the Brazilian government to include them in the cabinet. Even if it fails, the United States will lose millions of dollars now being pumped into the skidding Brazilian economy.

When in Sao Paulo and Rio, I was briefed on this Communist strategy. I was alerted to watch for a series of strikes in the vital port of Santos, which I visited immediately.

THOSE WATERFRONT strikes on piers which must remain unclogged if Brazil is not to strangle have begun. In the past few weeks, these Communist-run stoppages have tied up 159 big freighters. The walkouts have cost Brazil, which is asking the United States for millions of dollars in quick aid, scores of millions of dollars.

At one point last week 104 vessels carrying needed supplies and machinery to the "A.B.C." industrial belt around the huge city of Sao Paulo were idle and unloaded. Unless their holds are empty, they cannot take on Brazilian exports, including 40 per cent of its coffee.

The Santos-Jundiai Railway ceased operations. Trucks were idle. All transport of gasoline and fuel oil was immobilized.

The Communist-controlled waterfront unions need no real cause for a strike. I have reports of a recent stoppage called by a flying squad 15 minutes after the police arrested one stevedore for pilfering. The entire port of Santos went dead.

In mid-August a dock strike was called because the shippers balked when the left-wing labor leaders demanded a 1962 Christmas bonus for their men. Fifty-five ships were tied up.

THE LATEST walkout was called in support of striking hospital workers. There will be other walkouts in this key port, upon which so much of South American prosperity depends—but which is so little known in the United States because it is so far off.

In addition to Communist efforts to paralyze the Santos waterfront, the unions use these walkouts to pressure the non-Communist gas and oil distribution workers' union. This is one of the few labor organizations still fighting the Moscow-Havana-oriented labor federations.

The pro-Communists control the gas and petroleum refineries which are owned by the Brazilian government corporation known as Petrobras. But the distributive facilities still are in private hands.

The Communists are able to win influence in unions covering federal operations because powerful elements in the Brazilian government encourage and support them. But the private companies do not pressure the unions at their plants into permitting Communists to take over!

So the Communists who now control the union of government oil workers plan a general strike in the refining fields.

THEY EXPECT to disrupt transport and production throughout Brazil so completely that they will be able to convince the government to yield to their demands—which will include the nationalization of the entire oil industry.

This would cover gas and fuel oil distribution. Then the Communists, with the aid of the government, would simply merge both unions and control all movement as well as refining of petroleum products.

The shipping strikes in Santos are part of the rehearsal and preparations for the general strike in the fuel industry.

Yet they could be stopped by the Ministry of Labor, Industry and Commerce. It is all set down in Chapter Seven of the labor code, which is on my desk.

The Labor Minister Amauri Silva, has the power to limit the geographic jurisdiction of all unions. He can take the strike leaders into special courts. He can order the strike leaders into special courts. He can order the strike to stop immediately—and if disobeyed he can suspend the union chiefs for two to five years.

If the strike was voted at a membership meeting, he can put the union out of existence by revoking its charter.

When I was in Brazil last month there were costly strikes—yet at that moment the United States gave $11 million in foreign aid to Brazil for special projects.

Why, then, is President Joao Goulart's administration permitting left-wing strikes which cripple his country while we pour in vast sums?

Letter To Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

I read of Thursday's Review for 14 square miles of St. Clair Township and the estimated price involved.

I think the voters of the township should have a right to express their judgment as to where this water supply comes from. East Liverpool water, no doubt, is pure after it is chemically treated after it is pumped out of the dirty Ohio River.

Most of the residents out here have expressed their feelings toward East Liverpool's water by moving away from Liverpool and drilling their own wells. If it is necessary to change this situation in our township, let's go for a better or independent source.

Crime On Rise

By David Lawrence

Need For Effective Punishment Emphasized

Just three days before the march on Washington—which was widely praised as orderly—the people of the City of Washington read of the murder of Newell W. Ellison, Jr., son of a prominent attorney. Nobody knew then who had committed the crime. All that was known was that the David Lawrence young man was robbed and killed while walking his dog late at night near his home. An automobile was heard speeding away from the scene.

This tragic occurrence shocked the community. It depressed everybody who knew the brilliant young man. He was a graduate of Princeton, had done post-graduate work at Yale, and was writing his thesis for a doctorate.

Now it turns out young Ellison was shot down by five young Negroes, armed with two pistols, who were cruising about in a stolen automobile, looking for victims to rob.

The episode points to the plight of the people in the national capital, who see plenty of troops and battalions of police mobilized to take care of a parade, and wonder why the lives of people in the community are not similarly protected day in and day out.

Official figures show that the City of Washington has the largest number of aggravated assaults per capita of any city in the country.

It so happens that the suspects were apprehended when four of them—again in a stolen car—had been chased by police after going through a red light. One of their number thought they were being pursued for the murder of young Ellison and promptly confessed.

All of the suspects have criminal records, which now have been revealed. One had been arrested six times since early 1962 on charges including housebreaking, unlawful entry, petty larceny, possession of a prohibited weapon (knife) and on three counts of assault with a deadly weapon, in one of which the victim was bitten.

ANOTHER of the Negroes has a record of four charges of assault, a purse-snatching, housebreaking, unlawful entry and two counts of destroying movable property.

A third Negro, according to the records, had been charged with tampering with an auto in 1961 and had been arrested also on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The previous police records of the other two were not disclosed. They are under 18 years of age, and there's a question as to what will be done to them because they are juveniles.

This is a much-debated subject in Washington and elsewhere, because a good deal of leniency is shown to juveniles.

Judge Robert Gardner of the Superior Court of Orange County in California, wrote an article in the August 1963 issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, in which he pointed out the tendency of juvenile courts to put the "sophisticated young criminals" in the same category as juveniles who are "dependent or neglected" children.

He added: "It is submitted that treating such an offender as a misunderstood child merely because of the short time which has elapsed between birth and crime is completely unrealistic. It is an incontrovertible fact that chronological age is no indication of the experience factor. Handling all persons under 18 years of age as naughty children is ridiculous."

THE CRIME WAVE in America is emphasized again and again in the reports by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Some startling figures have been published. Here are some of them:

1. Crimes by youth have been growing fast. In 1962 arrests of youths under the age of 18 increased by 9 per cent. These youths accounted for 62 per cent of all auto thefts, 51 per cent of all larcenies, 49 per cent of all burglaries, 29 per cent of all robberies, 19 per cent of all forcible rapes, 13 per cent of all aggravated assaults and 8 per cent of all murders and non-negligent manslaughter cases.

2. Bank robberies have almost tripled in six years. They have gone from 450 in 1956 to 1,250 in 1962.

3. Embezzlements have nearly doubled since 1956. They were 1,270 in 1956 and 2,257 in 1962.

4. Robberies are up 15 per cent since 1958. There were 82,500 five years ago, and last year there were 95,260.

Among the 20 largest cities in the country, Washington heads the list in assault, while Chicago, heads the list in robberies. The percentages are high everywhere, in the North as well as in the South.

What will be done about it? Certainly the march on Washington gave the impression to the country that all is well with the relations between the races and that the police can handle any situation that may threaten disorder in Washington. But the crime situation has not been handled effectively.

THERE ARE no signs that any progress is really being made because there are certain impediments. One of them is the leniency of the courts, particularly since the Supreme Court of the United States has rendered a decision which makes it possible for a criminal to escape punishment if his attorney pleads that he had not been promptly arraigned.

Other technicalities in court decisions are cited as having interfered with the punishment of guilty persons. These could be remedied by law.

The police are frustrated. Many of the criminals know what their legal rights are and manage to take advantage of them. Sooner or later, the American people will demand that the Congress of the United States, the State Legislatures and the local governments join together in taking measures to repress crime by the only method that has ever been successful—namely, the punishment of the guilty as an example to others.

Pop Go The Openers!

By K. M. Rower

A man walked into a corner delicatessen in Manhattan recently and bought a carton of bottled soft drinks. He asked for an opener. "Sorry," said the clerk, "we don't give them out any more. Zip-top, you know."

The proliferation of the zip-top (flip-top, pop-top, snap-top, pull-top, or what you will) for the beverage can has brought several interesting peripheral effects. While the brewers—or some of them—boast of booming sales and cheerful customer reception, there are people strolling around with finger cuts sustained while zipping, flipping or snapping, and a lot more are annoyed that it's so hard to get an opener nowadays.

Zip-tops are aluminum, unlike the plated steel used in the rest of the can. They are made by large can companies under license, fitted to the cylinder of the beer can, and sent to the breweries for filling and sealing in bottoms-up fashion.

At least three non-can making companies would like nothing better than to see every snapping, pulling, zipping, popping top flipped right back into limbo.

These firms sell an estimated 95 per cent of the 200 million openers turned out annually. So far they say they haven't been hurt but they are worried about coming years. Right now the per-unit price for zip-tops is considerably higher than for can-cum-opener combinations.

In addition to the cut finger problem which is hard to weigh statistically, the matter most weighing the opener makers is cost. Zip-tops are said to cost 9 cents extra for each case of 24 cans. The brewer adds a penny—in New York, at least—and charges the retailer a dime. The retailer adds more pennies and charges the customer as much as a nickel more on the six-pack, or 20 cents on the case.

The customer pays no premiums for the old openers, of course, and their cost to the brewer is relatively small. Openers range in price from $10.25 per thousand—for small, simply imprinted affairs—to about $17 for large, elaborately imprinted ones.

In some areas of the country—Florida is one—brewers put no "upcharge," or premium, in zip-tops and simply absorb the 9 cents extra on each case. Rumor has it they are tolerating the profit squeeze because can sales are distinctly up during the novelty period and will hopefully stay up on repeat sales.

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut are the New England States.

Replace Elephant Jokes

Explanations For 'BOP' Used In New Word Game

These "Tom Swifties" have gone out the window, painlessly, and jokes about elephants in green tennis shoes have been shoved into the background, now that East Liverpool has its own localized word game:

What does "BOP" mean? Since the sale of bumper stickers and lapel buttons with the cryptic letters began last week-end, explanations have come thick and fast. Everyone has his own version, most of them intended as a joke and many with a little free advertising thrown in. Is it "Buy Old Pottery" or "Break Old Pottery"? Maybe it's "Buy Our Pipe" as one manufacturer of vitrified products proposed.

Cynics say that BOP means "Blot Out Politicians." And the faithful of both political affiliations say it means "Boost Our Party."

A plumber wearing one of the BOP badges said the letters stand for "Best Of Plumbers." Downtown merchants like to think it means "Buy Our Products." And the people who drive downtown to patronize the stores propose "Better Our Parking."

To the football squad, the letters mean "Boost Our Pottery." In the case of another fellow it's "Beatsniks On Parade."

The anonymous committee selling the badges and stickers said no one has guessed the meaning of the letters, but it promised the secret will be revealed within a few weeks at most.

Meanwhile, sale of the stickers and buttons is moving a head briskly, with the public asked for a minimum donation of 50 cents.

When the committee launched the sale it said simply that it was in connection with a civic project for the betterment of East Liverpool, backed by men who represent most of the service organizations in town. That's as far as the explanation has gone.

Patrol Division Has 7 Fatalities

Traffic accidents in State Highway Patrol District 4, which includes the Lisbon post, claimed seven lives during August, according to the headquarters at Warren.

A total of 495 accidents were investigated. Of these, 202 were injury accidents in which 336 persons were hurt.

By comparison, there were 13 persons killed during August 1962, when a total of 382 accidents were investigated.

Officers made a total of 1,957 arrests, including 1,333 for traffic violations, 423 other misdemeanor charges and one felony. A total of 5,155 traffic warnings and 688 registration warnings were issued.

Officers in the district handled 95 special details, gave 267 safety talks, recovered property estimated at $7,059, checked 28,475 vehicles and collected $2,480.40 registration fees.

A total of 176 PUCO inspections were made and "assistance rendered" in 193 cases.

Police Dispute Hearing Due By Sept. 14

No action is expected Monday in Common Pleas Court at Lisbon on two phases of the police dispute at Wellsville. The deadline for return by the defendants is Sept. 14.

Hearings were to have been held but the dates listed were only entered so the papers could be served. An assignment commissioner was not present at the time to make a definite date. Monday was selected tentatively because it is the opening date of the new court term.

Mayor William Daugherty and Safety - Service Director Fred Baldasare must show cause why they should not be cited for contempt of court. This charge was filed by Atty. Ben Berman of East Liverpool and Atty. Frank Springer of East Palestine after they did not take immediate action on a court order to appoint a patrolman to fill a vacancy on the force.

They took almost a week to make the appointment after the court issued its ruling. After they did fill the post by naming Gene Keith Hamilton, Charles Amato, represented by Berman, filed a petition seeking a writ of mandamus to set aside Hamilton's appointment and name him in the position.

The action to force the filling of the vacancy was filed by Joseph Heiney, who resigned from the police force in June.

The mayor and director have until next Saturday to file a plea in regards to the petition filed by Amato.

In the meantime, Hamilton resigned last week.

Turncoat Sorry Of Decision To Go To Red China

HONG KONG (AP) — Korean war turncoat Scott L. Rush said today he regretted his decision to go to Communist China after the Korean War.

"Only God knows why," the 31-year-old former U.S. Army sergeant told a news conference.

"I made a foolish mistake," Rush, of Marietta, Ohio, arrived from Red China at noon with his Chinese wife and year-old daughter.

"I have seen both sides and I think our system will work better," he said.

Rush described conditions in Red China from 1958 to the end of 1960 as "hell." He said no Communist regime would have lasted long if things were to remain the same as they were then.

He attributed Red China's "hard time" to the weather and Russian pressure for Korean War debts.

Rush said industrialization in Wuhan, central China, where he worked in a textile factory as a lathe operator, was virtually at a standstill for lack of raw materials.

He had visited many parts of China. In many factories, he said, production was low.

Rush was captured in November 1950 while serving as a combat photographer under the United Nations command. He spent three years in a prisoner of war camp during which, he said, "the Chinese Communists tried to pump communism into me." He decided to go to Red China out of curiosity, Rush said.

PRESERVE your individuality in death as you do in life! We are born, and die as individuals. It is this individuality, not rank or financial position, that should be respected in life. Likewise we should vigorously oppose the philosophy of modern cemetery promotions which would deny us traditional Memorial privileges—the right to erect a Monument or marker of our own choosing. It will pay you to visit our full stocked display room, where you will be greeted by a courteous representative, who will gladly assist you in the planning of your final estate—from the choice of a suitable cemetery site to design and erection of a Graham and Wagner family Memorial. If you have a Memorial project locally or elsewhere, we invite consultation without the slightest obligation.

By JOHN BOHANNAN

A friend who became interested in boating and took the Power Squadron piloting course last winter decided to make the big step in the spring. Several of his experiences accent the importance of having enough good lines of sufficient length aboard every boat.

This man never had owned so much as a rowboat. He had good training but no experience. With the help of his wife, the groceries and supplies were loaded on their first boat, a 36-foot steel cruiser. He turned on the bilge blower, then warmed up the twin 275-horsepower engines.

"Frankly, I was scared," he said. "I tried to think of excuses for staying ashore. Then I decided there had to be a first time and this might as well be it."

Q.—How long should an anchor line be?

A. At least seven times, and preferably 10 times, the depth of the water you expect to be taking your boat through.

Q.—How can the ends of lines be kept from unlaying without whipping them?

A.—Seize and dip in varnish or fast-drying lacquer. Nylon line ends can be fused by heating with a match. Whipping is a more seamanlike job.

Beaver Wins 31st In Row By Routing Wellsville, 31-6

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Chances of Wellsville High coming up with at least a few victories this season with a vastly inexperienced squad appeared a little more favorable today if the determination and scrap displayed in a 31-6 defeat to seasoned Beaver is any yardstick for measurement.

The Tigers, listing only four seniors and a front wall greener than the undernourished turf at Nicholson Stadium, didn't perform too badly against the big, experienced Pennsylvanians although given a decisive trouncing.

Coach Ken Woods sent an untested eleven against the invading Beaver Countians who haven't lost a game in three seasons Friday night with a crowd of 2,400 on hand at Wellsville.

The big question mark for the Tigers was quarterback—could 16-year-old freshman Chris Thornton do the job?

In his initial varsity start, the 170-pound rookie showed he can run with better than average ability, throw a good pass and keep the offense under control without fumbling.

Visitors Score In Every Quarter

He gained 73 yards in 11 attempts for a 6.7 average per try. Thornton didn't fare so well in passing, however, although most of his tosses were near the mark if not right on the button. All but a few were dropped by the receivers, and Beaver picked off three for interceptions.

Beaver Coach John Berdell saw his precision Bobcats chalk up their 31st consecutive victory with touchdowns in every period. In complete command all the way, Beaver rolled up a whopping 300 yards rushing and 78 more in the air for a net of 378.

Only Thornton kept Wellsville's offensive attack from appearing as dry as the Congressional Record.

It was his 46-yard dash down the sidelines that provided Wellsville with its lone scoring opportunity late in the game after Beaver had rolled up a big lead.

He raced from the Wellsville 30 to the Beaver 24 on a keeper play, and the Tigers had their first six-pointer of the season in a few minutes.

Three carries by halfback Ron Daniels and one by halfback Jim Reed moved Wellsville to the goal line, and Daniels scored on a short crash across the center with 3:38 left on the clock. The Tiger quarterback lost his footing on the conversion try and Wellsville was forced to settle for only six points.

The tally came against Beaver's first squad, summoned hastily into action after Thornton's long run down the sidelines past the bench where they rested after building up the lead.

Woods, starting his sixth season at Wellsville and not hoping for much in this one, said he the more seasoned foe. Questioned on Thornton's ability, he said "I think he can do the job."

Injuries, always a serious problem to a team short on depth, hit Wellsville from the very start. Sub quarterback Jeff MacLean didn't dress for the game, and hurt in the action were lineman Terry Grills, and guard Tom Koonitz, one of the few returning veterans for Wellsville. They were not believed seriously injured.

Line coach Dick Jones singled out Koonitz, 160-pound senior, and underclassman Bill Pease, 150-pound sophomore tackle, for spirited blocking on the front wall.

Wellsville's performance in the season debut indicated Woods will have more headaches with developing a sharp offensive attack than worrying about the defense.

Save for a few long runs to the outside by Thornton, the Tigers were just about harmless against the big Beaver line. Reed and Mobley were able to contribute very little to the rushing game, and Daniels carried nine times for 35 yards.

Wellsville managed only one first down in the first half, gaining only 44 yards rushing. The Tigers' passing attack left a lot to be desired, although Woods is experiencing a shortage of tall receivers. Thornton attempted 16 passes and completed three for 39 yards.

Punting was one bright spot in the picture, with Koonitz kicking five times and lofting each into the air for fair yardage.

Beaver, with 14 lettermen in the fold, flashed good speed and

Oak Glen Blanked 21-0 By St. Mary's In School's Opener

Fumbles Costly; 5,000 Expected For Potters' Opener

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Oak Glen received its first taste of football Friday night but found it a hard pill to swallow as a visiting St. Mary's team, loaded with veterans, turned in a 21-0 victory over the Hancock County eleven.

A crowd of some 3,000, the largest ever to see a football game at Newell, sat in on Oak Glen's inaugural.

St. Mary's, a team from the Parkersburg area which compiled a 9-1 record last season, scored in every period but the second in registering its first victory of the campaign.

The visitors tallied once in the first quarter, scored a safety in the third and shot two touchdowns across in the final stanza.

Jim Heaton, a quick-stepping letterman halfback, reeled off two touchdown runs of 22 and 31 yards while Dave Hickman, a sub replacing the regular fullback who was injured, scored the other TD from two yards out.

FOLLOWING the contest, Bob Starkey, making his debut as a head coach with the Oak Glen eleven, called St. Mary's "a well-conditioned squad with a veteran lineup."

"We played quite a few sophomores tonight," and the Oak Glen coach went on to praise the work of one of them — quarterback Mike Clutter who engineered a drive which took Oak Glen to the St. Mary's 10-yard line late in the fourth quarter marking the deepest march of the evening.

STARKEY also pointed out the fine running of Ed Wudarsky. "Wudarsky ran real hard out there tonight." He also had a word of praise for Carl Gillespie, 192-pound tackle who turned in a fine defensive game.

Wudarsky was the standout runner for Oak Glen. The shifty halfback was the leading ground gainer for the Tigers ripping off two long runs of 42 and 26 yards.

Fumbles proved costly to the Hancock squad. The Tigers had drives underway in the first half but fumbles brought them to a dead stop.

OAK GLEN learned how costly fumbles were in the second half when a bobble was recovered by St. Mary's on the Oak Glen two-yard line early in the fourth quarter setting up the visitors' second touchdown.

St. Mary's scored first in the opening period from a drive which started on its own 44.

A 16-YARD RUN by Heaton put the ball on Oak Glen's 28-yard line then Allen Hall picked up six to the 22. This set the stage for Heaton as he went off the left side to paydirt. A pass from quarterback Randy Bullman to Dick Spencer netted the extra point and a 7-0 lead. Neither team threatened in the second quarter.

While Oak Glen didn't allow St. Mary's a touchdown in the third quarter, the Tigers gave up a safety late in the period when both will be alternating at this position.

East Liverpool will have a slight edge on the forward wall, with its line averaging 190 pounds.

THE POTTERS have been hard pressed to win an opening game, the last such victory coming in 1957.

The 1958 opener with Akron St. Vincent ended in a 20-20 tie, then came a loss to Youngstown South in 1959. The last three seasons the Potters have lost to the best, Massillon in 1960 and Niles in 1961 and 1962.

passer should the Potters have to take to the air.

The other four backs who will be doing most of the ball toting have about the same speed. They are halfbacks Bob Mercer, John DiPasquale and Earl Olmstead and fullback Bob Bowyer.

EITHER DiPasquale or Mercer will start at right halfback, but Mayhew, going wide apparently to pass deep in his own territory, was hauled down by two opposing tacklers in the end zone.

ST. MARY'S struck early in the fourth quarter when a mix up in the Oak Glen backfield cost a fumble on the two yard line. Two plays later Hickman busted up the middle for the six points.

With about four minutes remaining in the contest, Heaton added the finishing touches when the swift moving back found a

Thornton Risks Rating Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Irish Wayne Thornton risks his No. 4 rating among the light heavyweight boxing challengers tonight against Argentine champion Jose Menno, a rugged puncher he already has beaten once.

It would appear Thornton accepted a fight where he has everything to lose and nothing to gain since the Argentine isn't ranked among the top ten and could pull an upset.

Thornton figures a convincing victory in this nationally televised (ABC) bout at Kezar Pavilion will vault him into a title shot against Willie Pastrano, a familiar playmate.

Before Willie the Wisp beat Harold Johnson for the title, he and the Fresno, Calif., body belt-belted three times.

Krivoshia Scores 4 TDs In Midland's 43-13 Victory

Leopards Crush Invading Eleven

By ANDY NUZZO

A tremendous performance by Mike Krivoshia sparked the Midland Leopards to a resounding 43-13 triumph over the new Serra High School of McKeesport before a good throng at Midland Stadium Friday night.

The big 6-foot, 200-pound senior halfback played only the first half of the game but during that span he scored four touchdowns, gained 158 yards in only four carries and played a tremendous defensive game from his linebacker position.

The Leopards' of Charley Polce flashed mid-season form as they won their first opening game in four years.

The entire Midland eleven put on a fine offensive and defensive show and a repeat performance Friday night at East Liverpool could spell trouble for the veteran Potters.

Serra Catholic is a first year school and does not have a senior class. Coach Gene Gorman's Eagle eleven is made up of juniors and sophomores who did not have any varsity experience prior to Friday's contest.

Midland wasted no time getting on the scoreboard. On the third play of the game Krivoshia scampered 65 yards around his left end for the first score.

Two Serra players watched Krivoshia's ensuing kickoff roll dead on their 20 and Midland center Phil Dawson alertly fell on the free ball.

On the next play Krivoshia took a roll - out pass in the end zone from his halfback counterpart, Sam Zigerelli, and the Leopards had a 12-0 bulge with only two minutes gone in the game.

After halting an Eagle drive on their 18, Krivoshia added six more points to the Midland attack with an 82-yard jaunt around left end.

The fourth Leopards tally in the first period was set up by quarterback Ron Dominici, who returned a Serra punt from mid-field to the Eagle 16.

On first down, Zigerelli took a pitchout from sophomore quarterback Steve Alston and streaked into the end zone.

Halfback Vince Opsky put Serra on the scoreboard in the second period with a 14-yard run that climaxed a 48-yard drive. The drive started when the Eagles recovered a Midland fumble and took seven plays. Opsky tackled on the extra point by placement.

Alston took the ensuing kickoff and struggled 82 yards to paydirt only to have his run nullified because of a clipping penalty. The penalty set the Leopards back to the mid-field stripe where they proceeded to drive for their lone TD in the second quarter.

Krivoshia climaxed the drive that took six plays by bulging his way over the final stripe from seven yards out. The half ended with Midland in front by a 30-7 count.

Midway through the third period Serra pushed across its final touchdown of the night. Opsky grabbed a nine - yard aerial from quarterback Jeff Kelly for the score.

Reserve quarterback Bernie Mraovic put Midland in the scoring column in the second half. With nine minutes left in the game Mraovic picked off a Kelly aerial on the Serra 31 and scampered untouched into the end zone. Zigerelli then added his only placement of the night and Midland led, 37-13.

Alston recorded the final points of the contest on a 23-yard keeper play around his right end. A key block by Al Sepos cleared the path for Alston. The touchdown climaxed a seven play, 58-yard drive.

Two other Leopard scoring chances were halted by a penalty and a fumble.

Stanton Edged In Opener, 34-30

1,100 Watch Raiders Fall To Hopedale

Hopedale again spilled Stanton Local in an opening game, this time by a 34-30 edge in a free-wheeling game Friday night before some 1,100 fans at Stanton's new stadium.

The new football plant was dedicated before the game and the crowd hardly got settled until the fireworks began.

Hopedale's Gordie Merryman, on the first play from scrimmage, raced 45 yards for a touchdown to the surprise of everyone. The conversion failed but the visitors led, 6-0.

Stanton came roaring back and drove 75 yards to set up a touchdown for Jim Pilutti who went over from one yard out. Bob Reese tackled on the conversion and Stanton led for the only time in the game, 8-6.

Stanton kicked off and on the second play from scrimmage Merryman was off and running again, this time for a 75-yard TD gallop. Rodich added the extra points for a 14-6 lead.

In the second period, Rodich smacked over from five yards away on a touchdown which was set up by a 30-yard pass play. The conversion made it 22-6.

Stanton got into the scoring column in the third quarter when Reese shot over from the three but before the period ended Polen scored from two yards out to put the margin at 28-14.

The Red Raiders, in an attempt to get back into the game, scored early in the fourth quarter. Pilutti added his second touchdown from the three and Reese ran the extra point to make it 34-22.

Midway in the fourth period Capers scored from the six to end Hopedale's touchdown parade.

Stanton hadn't finished though as a Wes Burgett hit Dick Severs with a pass on a touchdown play covering 61 yards.

Hopedale defeated Stanton in the opener last year, depriving the Raiders of an undefeated season.

Carrollton struck pay dirt late in the first quarter through the air when Bill Blazer took an eight yard pass in the end zone then added the two - point conversion.

Lisbon came roaring back, grinding out yardage and netted its first touchdown when senior Gary Peruchetti banged over from the two - yard line. The conversion failed and the Blue Devils remained behind, 8-8.

Dave Rose, senior halfback and leading scorer for Lisbon last season, put the Bucherners in front for good when he raced 14 yards in the second quarter then added the conversion for a 14-8 lead.

Tight Races Seen In AFL

By The Associated Press

Tight races in both divisions are the prospect as the American Football League fires the opening gun for its fourth season tonight.

Two games are on the schedule. Kansas City's defending AFL champion Chiefs against the Broncos at Denver and the Oakland Raiders against the Oilers at Houston.

The first weekend of the season will be completed Sunday with the Buffalo Bills playing the Chargers at San Diego and the rebuilt New York Jets taking on the Patriots at Boston.

The Chiefs-then the Dallas Texans-dethroned Houston last year in one of football's historic games, winning 20-17 on Tommy Brooker's 25-yard field goal at 17 minutes, 54 seconds of sudden-death overtime. The Oilers were shooting for their third straight league championship.

Salem Wins By 18 To 14

SALEM - Salem High's grid ders drove to a 12-0 halftime lead, but then had to stave off a fighting Cleveland Lincoln eleven to win, 18-14, here Friday night in the opening game of the 1963 football season.

George Begalla struck twice for the Quakers in the second quarter on plunges of two and three yards, but both attempts for extra points failed and the half ended, 12-0.

Ken Zaleski broke loose on a 26-yard gallop for the visitors in the third period and Percy Piado tackled on two points on a run to make it 12-8.

Begalla tallied for the home forces in the third and the try for the extra points failed again, but Salem held the lead going into the fourth quarter, 18-8.

Zaleski again scored for the Cleveland team in the final period on a six-yard jaunt, but the attempt for the extra points failed.

Lincoln pounced on a Salem fumble on the Cleveland 29 with 17 seconds left, and then completed two passes, but time ran out before another play could be run off.

Canfield ran up two markers in the third quarter when Dave Evans grabbed a punt and returned it 46 yards for the touchdown. Cross and Cummings hooked up again on a 20-yard pass play for a score later in the period.

The final TD came on a three-yard run by second string quarterback Bob Rhel.

OFF THE RECORD

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, Sept. 7, the 250th day of 1963. There are 115 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1892, John L. Sullivan battled James J. Corbett for the heavyweight championship in New Orleans. Corbett won in 21 rounds in the first match under the Marquis of Queensbury rules.
On this date
In 1533, Britain's Queen Elizabeth I was born.
In 1778, Daniel Boone turned back an Indian attack on the fort he had founded in Boonesborough, Ky.
In 1822, Brazil declared its independence from Portugal.
In 1940, London suffered its first heavy night rain by Nazi planes in the battle of Britain.
In 1945, President Truman received the Japanese surrender papers signed aboard the battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay.
Ten years ago... President Truman hailed West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's victory in parliamentary elections as an endorsement of U.S. foreign policy.
Five years ago... Warships of the 7th fleet escorted Chinese Nationalist supply convoys moving to Island of Quemoy.
One year ago... Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson returned to Washington from a good will tour of Mediterranean and Middle East nations.

Taking The Makings

DELAND, Fla. (AP)—A burglar got all the makings of a real whinding in a break here. Missing from the burglarized restaurant were 18 bottles of wine, lots of beer, a case of soft drinks, $3 in cash, two cases of potato chips and more than 20 jukebox records.

Junior Editors Quiz on HAWAII

QUESTION: How were the Hawaiian Islands formed?

ANSWER: As you look down on our map of our wonderful new state of Hawaii, you will see, on each island, radiating lines which come together. These show the position of volcanoes, either those still active, or some which used to be. The island of Hawaii has the two biggest ones, Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea; the latter towers 13,796 ft.
These islands were formed by submarine volcanoes breaking through the sea floor, spilling out great quantities of molten material which gradually built a cone toward the surface and into the air. When the lava flows stopped, winds and rain eroded the summits, soil formed and vegetation grew.
Our map shows how the islands are stretched out in a chain, and one may well ask, why was this? A startling new theory has been proposed, which we illustrate. At one time, it is thought, there may have been shifting of the earth's masses over softer material underneath. There may have been a main volcanic core leading down which constructed an island. Then this island may have been moved to the northwest by the earth shift and a new volcanic island formed from the original core and so on. Some of these islands may have had underground connections along. This is not proved, but seems possible.

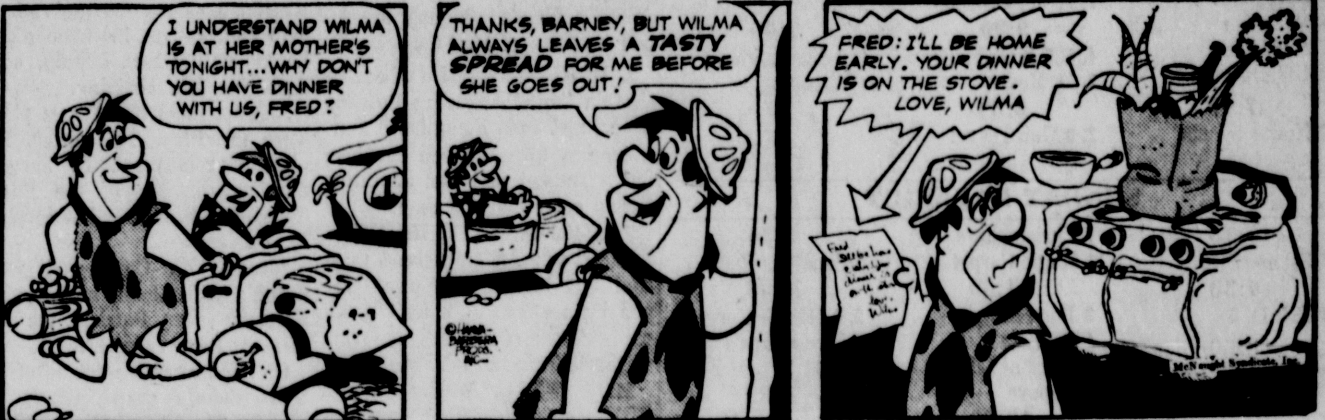

FOR YOU TO DO: Get a friend and read aloud with you the names of the Hawaiian Islands, one after the other. It will sound like two native Hawaiians talking and you will get an idea of this beautiful, musical language.

Margaret Soisson of Loretta, Pa., wins today's grand prize of a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you too may win a set.

Officials Doubt Jury Will Get Slaying Case

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Officials say they doubt the next Scioto County Grand Jury, which meets Monday, will get the case of accused child-slayer Mrs. Cora Ferrell, 26.

The case of Mrs. Ferrell, wife of a Wheelersburg tenant farmer, was referred to the grand jury Friday. Mrs. Ferrell was charged with manslaughter after Mark Anthony Ferrell, 22 months, died Aug. 9, of what his mother described as a fall from his bed.

Granted Asylum

LONDON (AP)—Konstantin Silkov, 21, a Soviet sailor who jumped ship last week, was granted political asylum in Britain on Friday. The 1,310-ton vessel Haapsala sailed without him Aug. 31.

Commissioners File Levies For Fall Vote

County commissioners Friday certified resolutions to the County Election Board asking a ballot place for a vote on three county-wide levies at the Nov. 5 general election.

Two of the proposals are renewals and the third is a new proposition to provide additional funds for child welfare care.

The resolutions seek renewal of a four-tenths mill levy for tuberculosis care and a five and a half tenths of a mill levy for current expenses — child welfare care. The new levy for a quarter of a mill also is for current expenses — child welfare care.

Commissioners indicated to the board Wednesday they would ask renewal of the two existing levies and the new proposal for child welfare. All the levies would be in effect five years.

President's Father Marks 75th Birthday

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—The Kennedy clan gathered here today to pay tribute to its chief, Joseph P. Kennedy.

Those on hand included the President of the United States, his brothers and sisters and 21 grandchildren.

The President and his brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., flew in Friday night from Washington in a driving rain to help their father, the former ambassador to Great Britain, celebrate his 75th birthday.

Also on the White House plane were the President's sister, Eunice; her husband, R. Sargent Shriver, director of the Peace Corps, and brother-in-law Stephen Smith.

Already on Cape Cod were Smith's wife, Jean, and another Kennedy sister, Patricia, the wife of actor Peter Lawford.

On hand as well were all of the ambassador's grandchildren, including the President's children, Caroline and John Jr.

There was no formal party. Adult Kennedys and small fry dropped in to pay their respects, singly and in groups.

This is expected to be the President's last weekend on Cape Cod until Thanksgiving, when the clan gathers for the traditional family dinner.

This is the President's 10th consecutive weekend on Cape Cod.

The First Lady, Jacqueline Kennedy, who has been at the summer White House all summer, is expected to go to Newport, R. I., next week to visit her stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, at their estate.

Old Dam 8 Boat Ramp Closed To Allow Site Work

The boat launching ramp at the former Dam 8 near Newell has been closed for the remainder of the boating season to accommodate new construction work, the Pittsburgh office of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers announced.

The grounds around the lock area are being improved, with recreation facilities such as picnic sites, parking area, water supply and restrooms planned.

Existing buildings are being razed to make way for the new recreation site to be completed by the end of the year, a spokesman said.

"The temporary inconvenience to the boating public caused by the closing of the ramp should be more than offset by the improvement available next year," the office spokesman added.

Elkton PTA To Meet

ELKTON — Committees will be named at a meeting of the Elkton Parent-Teacher Association Monday night at 7:30 at the Elkton School, Mrs. Jay Eells, president, announced. Teachers and other school personnel will be introduced. Mrs. William Spooner is publicity chairman.

Fireman Club To Be Formed

Organization of a Lawrenceville Firemen's Club, composed of firemen and social members, was authorized at a meeting of the fire department Thursday night at the fire station.

The new club will raise money to be presented to the fire department trustees for purchase of fire fighting equipment.

Application for a club charter was planned. Meetings are to be held at the fire station, and further details will be announced later, firemen said.

A public stag fish fry will be held next Friday at the fire station. The firemen will attend a fire school Oct. 5 at the Crucible Steel Co. at Midland.

The Grandview Mission was granted permission to use the fire station for an ice cream social later this month.

Nine attended. Jack Stover, president, was in charge. Next meeting is Sept. 19. It will begin at 6 p. m. to permit members to attend a meeting of the Tri-State Firemen's Association the same night at Ohioville.

What Teaching Machines Can Do for Your Child

By
JERRY KLEIN

A GROUP OF SENIORS in a mathematics class in a Roanoke (Va.) high school sat hunched over the windows of a boxlike contraption that posed questions much as a teacher would.

After writing the answer, each student twirled a knob which revealed the accuracy of his work. In one semester, using what have been popularly called "teaching machines," these 21 seniors have completed axiomatic algebra, solid geometry, and some calculus.

Surprisingly, this was not a class of geniuses but rather a normal group of intelligent youngsters studying math. The teaching machines were part of a special program in Roanoke to determine the effectiveness of teaching machines or "programmed instruction," as it is known to educators. This, the first real revolution in teaching techniques since the McGuffey readers, is being appraised in hundreds of schools with results that vary from good to startling.

Of the basic types of equipment used for "programmed instruction," perhaps the most inexpensive is the ingenious "electronic classroom"—originally the brainstorm of a Connecticut high-school French teacher, Mrs. Rita Barrows. At a party in Westport, Conn., Mrs. Barrows met an official of Dictaphone Corp. and wondered aloud whether a standard dictating machine could be adapted to automated classroom learning.

"Would you," she asked the official, "care to experiment?" The result is a special classroom in Westport's Long Lots Junior High School with three Dictaphone machines hooked up by earphone to 30 desks. With the aid of a channel selector at each desk, the student can bring in any one of three lessons prerecorded on plastic belts. The system allows students to work at their own best learning rate and frees the teacher for individual tutoring.

The so-called "teaching machines" are usually no more than a box about the size of a portable record player. The preprogrammed lesson, on paper or microfilm, is loaded into the machine, which brings each "step" of the lesson into view at the turn of a knob. The student then writes in the answer to the question in the frame and pulls a lever to uncover the correct answer so he can compare it with his own.

The basis of the teaching-machine program is the presentation of the material in small, easily grasped bits of information. The first steps are

They enable a student to learn faster and better—but they will never replace good, live teachers

simple and become difficult so gradually that the student is barely aware of it.

What are the values gained by the timesaving automated classrooms? First, teachers will be able to pay more attention to the broader aims of education than the mere repetition of facts and dates. Second, enjoying the stimulus of a constant check of his progress and the pleasure of being rewarded promptly when his work is correct, the pupil has a feeling of accomplishment.

Some educators feel that the very newness of the method accounts for a good deal of its effectiveness. They maintain that the novelty of using a machine catches the student's interest and helps hold him to his work. The real value of these procedures will not be known, then, until the students have been using machines or other types of programmed instruction throughout most of their educational careers. There is evidence, however, that the presentation of material in programmed form is highly effective.

Teaching machines and programmed instruction are not, of course, the final word in education. They have no magical properties that will suddenly implant in the student's mind the knowledge that exists in a specific course. Robert E. Silverman, chairman of New York University's psychology department, adds:

"It should be pointed out that programmed teaching will help your child most in those courses whose goals are the most clear and obvious. Also, its full potential is tied directly to that indispensable human element, the teacher who directs the use of the machine. Let there be no mistake: no system of electronics ever can replace the beneficial influence that an inspired instructor can have on your child."

THE CONTINUING NEED for this human touch was illustrated by the girl who was asked her opinion of the machines used in her school. "I like the machines, all right," she said. "But sometimes I'm uneasy because I have the feeling that I don't know why I answered the problems right." A live teacher can make sure that she really grasps the principles involved.

One firm producing programmed instructional materials considers the need for effective classroom teaching as basic to its whole approach. Accelerated Instruction Methods Corp. of Chicago provides a comprehensive teacher's manual for each of its programmed books in general science, so that active student participation can be extended to experiment periods and discussions led by the teacher. The joining of these two procedures adds to the effectiveness of both, and it is probable that this teacher-directed programmed instruction will be the most important result of the entire development.

Whatever the exact form of "hardware" used, rest assured that with proper supervision by live teachers, wonderfully free from much of the old routines, America's youth will be more truly educated than ever before. With programmed instruction, your child will learn more—and love it!

Stroke!

to cry. Don Osborne, the staff physical therapist at the Northern Westchester Hospital, was manipulating my impaired fingers one day about a week after my attack. We were joking. The next minute, inexplicably, I started weeping uncontrollably. Don just kept on working my hand, chatting away blithely. This kind of understanding can help a stroke victim immeasurably.

I spent more than two months under Dr. Rusk's supervision and still get hospital-administered physical therapy for two hours a day, three times a week. I've been most fortunate in such care. But most stroke victims get their treatment at home. With discipline, excellent results can be achieved, and without expensive equipment. No exercise should ever be attempted without specific instructions from your doctor, however. And he should check on your progress regularly. As a practical home guide, the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare issues an excellent pamphlet, entitled "Strike Back at Stroke" (available at U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D.C., 40¢).

It's quite complete on everything from "What Is a Stroke?" and "How Families Can Help Patients," to illustrated ways of doing rehabilitation exercises.

Many common household articles are better than expensive mechanical contrivances for exercising. You can learn to walk again by using the backs of two chairs, sliding them over the kitchen linoleum in the same rhythm the arms normally take when you move about. "Much better than crutches," says Dr. Rusk.

Using the slotted metal key to open a can of vacuum-packed coffee is a good exercise for strengthening the wrist and finger muscles. To develop control, try to turn doorknobs. Get someone to tie a piece of clothesline into a series of intricate knots, then you untie them.

I play cards with my family every night. At first I couldn't pick the cards up off the table with my weakened fingers, much less hold them. Now I can shuffle a deck, after a fashion. At present, I'm hard at work practicing penmanship with my bad hand, making old-fashioned ovals and ups-and-downs, as I did in grade school. My children practice with me nightly. It's a game, but I notice that their writing has improved along with mine.

PLAIN WALKING, particularly up and down stairs, even though it is laborious, is just about the best thing you can do to exercise a stricken leg. If your house has no stairs, any carpenter can build you a portable set of three or four steps with a handrail for practice.

For the stroke patient, just getting back to doing things even halfway normally is a powerful incentive to get well.

My own recovery, I am told, will be almost total before the year is out. My blood pressure is under control, and I've trimmed my weight. Recently, I met an old acquaintance. He didn't know I'd been ill, and his first words were, "I haven't seen you looking so well in years." He refused to believe me when I told him what had happened.

Missile zooms toward Surf on its way into space.

The Town That Runs for Its Life

Photos and Text by JAMES JOSEPH

A housewife boards a bus the Navy sends to take Surf residents out of missile range.

WORRIEDLY, a housewife in tiny Surf, Calif., scans the horizon. It's not rain she fears as she readies to hang out the family wash; it's missiles.

Due north of Surf loom the missile launch pads of Vandenberg Air Force Base, the West Coast's Cape Canaveral. She smiles, noting that the towering gantries—plainly visible from her bedroom window—are empty.

"Today," she sighs with relief, "we won't have to run."

There have been other days—more than 160 of them since 1958 and, during last October, nine days running—when Surf's 40 residents fled for their lives, leaving wash on the line, suppers unfinished, and beds unmade.

Tiny Surf—a railroad community lying in direct line of fire of every missile lobbed into polar orbit southward over the Pacific Missile Range—lives closer to the missile age than any town in the world. The thunderous roar of missiles overhead is as common as the raucous cry of sea birds, but in deserted Surf—evacuated before every firing—there is none to hear save assistant trainmaster Bob Wolfe and a telegrapher, who, moments before a missile is launched, barricade themselves in a hillside bunker.

Familiar to Surf's main street is the military cadence of white-helmeted security police with their urgent door pounding and hurried warning: "Evacuation, ma'am—in exactly one hour!"

"We try to give a day's warning," says a security officer at the Navy's Port Arguello Missile Facility, which supervises down-range ground safety, "but many of Vandenberg's launchings—unlike Canaveral's—are under the strictest security. Sometimes we're not notified ourselves until a few hours before a firing."

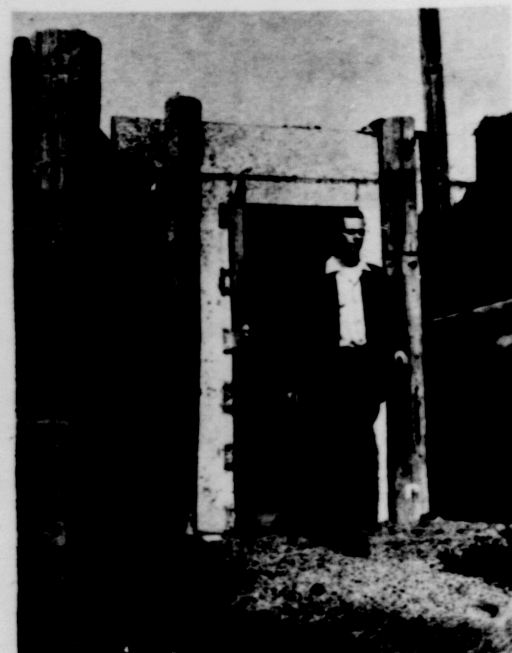

"We haven't really unpacked for more than three years now," says Mrs. John Martinez, whose telegrapher husband usually stays at his key, along with trainmaster Wolfe. "The kids and I just head for buses the Navy has ready. For the kids, it's more fun than a circus."

As guests of the U. S. Navy, Surf's families are treated to a picnic if it's a daytime launching.

For night "shots," Surf's half-dozen families get what one 13-year-old girl calls "the royal motel treatment—a big splashy pool to swim in, breakfast in bed if we want it, and even the morning paper delivered to our door."

Despite such free holidays, not all Surf wives look forward to being routed from their homes on a moment's notice. "But," says one resignedly, "we've come to expect the unusual—having the whole town run for its life."

Surf, Calif., becomes a ghost town when missiles thunder overhead from the nearby launch pads of the West Coast's Cape Canaveral

This is the shelter where Trainmaster Bob Wolfe (above) stays during missile firing.

Cantor, Chevalier when they first met in 1929.

By EDDIE CANTOR

Author of "As I Remember Them" toured many German cities as well. This, of course, was a deliberate fabrication.

Chevalier's first big break came when Paramount News offered to film his side of the story. This film, plus celebrated friends publicly declaring their faith in his loyalty, finally convinced the French people of his innocence.

The last time I saw Maurice in his one-man show here in America, he held the audience enthralled for two-and-a-half hours with no assistance except a piano. When I congratulated him backstage, he said, "Like you, Eddie, this is my life. A packed house, laughing and applauding and enjoying what I have to give—there's nothing like it in the world. And the pay is so good!"

LEO DUROCHER was there that night, too, and when Chevalier met this famous baseball personality, he shook hands with him, saying, "I am the French Leo Durocher."

Leo said, "I don't get it."

Maurice explained: "Over there, I'm known as the Lip."

Durocher laughed. "Yeah," he said, "but there's one difference: yours made you a fine fortune, and mine cost me a fortune in fines."

I had a lot of fun in Cannes, France, one night when Chevalier invited me to appear on his radio program. He wrote out phonetically the chorus of "Louise," and I sang it in French, but I got a big boot out of the next number. The orchestra went into "If You Knew Susie," and this fabulous Frenchman clapped his hands, rolled his eyes, and jumped up and down as he sang the words. When he finished, he panted and asked, "Eddie, how can you sing and jump at the same time?"

"You could, too," I said, "if you'd take off that heavy money belt." And I wasn't kidding. If ever a guy was loaded, it's Chevalier. For nearly half a century, he must have averaged $10,000 a week!

I'm not telling tales out of school when I say that Maurice has the reputation of being frugal, but many of his actions belie this reputation. For instance, he gave his magnificent estate near Cannes to the French Society of Authors and Composers, and the property is now a home for retired musicians and entertainers.

Chevalier is a living Horatio Alger story with a French accent. Maurice himself says, "I think you'll agree I have come a long way from the days of my childhood when a butcher who felt sorry for me would slip me a piece of horse meat. Think of it, Eddie, my greatest ambition then was to earn enough for soup and bread."

Today, and for most of his adult life, Maurice has had all the soup and bread he could eat, as well as two luxurious homes—a gorgeous villa situated on parklike grounds and an apartment in Paris filled with priceless paintings of the old masters.

Yes, Maurice Chevalier has come a long way, and judging by his energy and enthusiasm at 75, he'll go on for a long time to come.

My Friend Maurice Chevalier at 75

An American comedian pays a birthday tribute to the Gallic charmer with the straw hat

THIS WEEK my good friend Maurice Chevalier celebrates his 75th birthday. I could write a book about him—but let me briefly go back to the 1920s.

Paris in those days boasted "the girl with the most beautiful legs in the world," the Folies Bergère beauty, Mistinguett. She had all France at her feet and her choice of counts, princes, dukes, and multimillionaire business tycoons. Yet Mistinguett passed up all of them in favor of a penniless young man who, when she met him, was 22 years old and many years her junior.

The young man idolized her, and for the rest of their lives each was to be the other's only true love. But they didn't "live happily ever after." No, sadly, they went their separate ways when the man realized that part of his heart was irrevocably lost to another more capricious love—audiences all over the world, audiences that one day would return the adoration of Maurice Chevalier.

In 1929, I appeared in Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic" on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theater, New York's most expensive night club of the era. One evening, the Great Ziegfeld asked me to introduce someone in the audience. I had never heard the name before, nor had the audience, but after introducing him, he stayed onstage for more than an hour singing in English and French.

He could have sung in Chinese: that Parisian twinkle in his eye, that mischievous lower lip, the rakish angle of that now-famous straw hat hypnotized the audience. When Maurice Chevalier started taking bows, the applause shook the room.

This was my first meeting with the fascinating Frenchman, but through the years we became close friends. Just the other day I received a letter from him in his unmistakably bold, energetic handwriting. His letters, no matter how long, are always handwritten.

Following his recent television special, "The World of Maurice Chevalier," I gave a party for him. One guest was particularly hilarious and happy. Maurice whispered to me, "Eddie, who is he?"

I whispered back, "The leader of a big labor union."

Maurice laughed, "He's certainly having a wonderful time-and-a-half."

By the early 1930s, Chevalier was France's favorite and America's adopted son. During that period he was in Hollywood much of the time and visited me frequently.

One evening he pedaled up to my house, as usual, on a bicycle. "Maurice," I said, "you're too famous to be riding around on a bicycle. It's time you got a Rolls-Royce."

Chevalier chuckled, "Eddie, if I make good pictures, people will think I have a Rolls-Royce. If I make bad pictures, they will think I have a bicycle even if my garage is packed with Rolls-Royces."

One night after attending a movie, Maurice and I went to a nearby spot for doughnuts and coffee. At the sight of this continental charmer even the waitresses, who were used to Hollywood stars, lost their heads and their holds on the china. They broke more dishes than a new bride. And when Maurice dipped a doughnut in his coffee, one waitress yelled, "Look, girls! He dunks!"

Chevalier had the same deep passion for his country that he had for Mistinguett and for his audiences. A soldier in World War I, he was wounded in the right lung, captured by the Germans, and spent more than two years in a prison camp.

When he finally returned to Paris, he found it difficult to pick up the pieces of his career. Still weak and ill from his wound and his siege in the prison camp, he couldn't re-establish his old rapport with audiences. Just when things looked blackest, Mistinguett came to the rescue, and he once again appeared with her in the Folies Bergère. Now it was as if he never had been away.

As a veteran performer, Mistinguett helped Maurice in many ways. In the early days Chevalier affected a clown-like costume with rouged cheeks, a red nose, an ill-fitting suit, and a silly cap. It was Mistinguett who pointed out that, with his talent, he needed none of these things.

But it was in the midst of his rediscovered happiness, appearing in the Folies Bergère with Mistinguett, that things began to go wrong between them. When Mistinguett finally accepted the fact that her promising pupil had graduated and was now a performer of ever-increasing stature, her protective attitude was replaced by treatment usually reserved for rivals. As Chevalier grew more popular, he and Mistinguett grew further apart.

The climax came when the brilliant American actress, Elsie Janis, asked Maurice to play in a London revue with her. The decision to leave Paris and Mistinguett was an agonizing one, but when he made up his mind, Mistinguett's only comment was, "Well, Maurice, this is what you always wanted."

FROM THEN ON, Chevalier's success exceeded his wildest dreams. He was a happy man. Then came World War II. In love with a Jewish girl, Chevalier risked his life by hiding her and her parents from the Nazis.

But a bitter moment came at the end of the war. Listening to the radio one night, Chevalier heard his name listed among those who had collaborated with the Nazis. Everybody in France seemed to have heard this broadcast, but few heard a later one with the news that Chevalier's name had been included in error. The damage was done. Chevalier's beloved France hunted him as a collaborationist, accusing him of entertaining German troops.

The truth was that the Germans had urged him to accept an engagement in Berlin. He refused, but he did agree to appear just once at Alten Grabow, the camp where he had been a prisoner during World War I. His fee: the release of 10 French POWs. German news reports implied that he had performed in troop camps and had

THE FIRST SATURDAY morning of last January, I awoke before the dawn. As I moved to get out of bed, my right side seemed heavy. Trying to lift my right arm and leg, I found them almost wooden. Levering myself, I managed to stand and totter across the rug to the bathroom. There I leaned weakly against the door, exhausted.

Mentally, I was slightly disoriented. It was a feeling of bewilderment rather than confusion, of wonderment rather than panic. "What's the matter?" I kept repeating. My immediate reaction was that my leg and arm had "gone to sleep." I was surprised, though, that there was no prickling or tingling sensation.

Awkwardly, almost tripping, I lurched back to the bed where I sat down. Still, there was no pain, just the clumsy unliability of my right side. An immense weariness settled on me. I nudged my wife. Sleepily, she wanted to know what was the matter. Explaining to her, I became conscious of a difficulty in my speech. It was not so much that I couldn't think or express myself as it was a general awareness that I had to form my words before speaking them. It was something like trying to talk through puffed-up lips after being hit hard on the mouth.

Fully awake now, my wife called the doctor. By the time he arrived an hour later, my right arm and hand were completely immobile. I could just barely wiggle the toes on my right foot. With my weariness came a mounting anxiety, not about anything in particular, just an overriding uneasiness of mind.

I had suffered a stroke, which is the nation's third largest killer, behind heart disease and cancer. Strokes claim 200,000 lives annually in the United States alone, cripple an estimated half-a-million other victims. There are more than 1,800,000 individuals of all ages who have had one or more strokes and are now in hospitals, nursing homes, or other institutions, as well as those being cared for at home.

I was lucky that my stroke came when it did. Only a dozen years ago, little could have been offered me except chronic invalidism and kind words. Today, much can be done. I've just about licked my own stroke, and only a few months after my attack. I work a full day, speak effortlessly, walk nearly normally, and already have regained two-thirds use of my leg and arm.

Until my stroke, I, like most people, thought these accidents happened mainly to the elderly. I'm only 45, but stroke in my age group, I found, is common. In fact, in the 35 to 44 group it ranks fourth as a cause of death, after cancer, heart attacks, and accidents. High-tension jobs, so of-

BRINGING UP BABY,® HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF FIVE

How to keep a date with sleep

Nothing delights a mother more than when her baby peacefully slips into the land of nod. But as babies grow older even natural sleepyheads have some periods when they balk at sleep. If your baby goes on a night-owl spree occasionally, you might try these tried-and-true tips:

- If baby is kept reasonably active with a few games plus mild exercise during waking hours, he may succumb to the sandman more quickly. Peace and quiet and a lazy pre-bedtime bath have a lulling effect.
- A split-supper feeding may encourage drowsiness. Serve the main part of baby's meal a bit before the regular time. Save his bottle and a bit of fruit for a pre-crib snack.

Rockabye rebels or self-styled sleepyheads, both are partial to the pleasures of Gerber Strained Fruit Juices. That's because their delicate, true-fruit flavors make sipping something extra-special. Nutritionally speaking, all Gerber Juices are equally rich in vitamin C, needed for sound gums and body tissues. Nine varieties make up the luscious list, including two new Gerber greats: Mixed Fruit Juice and Prune-Orange . . . both flavor delights.

Delicious afterthought to cure post-nap blues: cooling sips of any Gerber Juice.

Words on waking hours. Just as every baby works out his own particular sleeping schedule, so he develops his individual pattern of wakefulness. As you become familiar with his waking hours (usually about the same times each day) your own schedule can be rearranged to spend part of these times encouraging him to try new things. When he must be alone, try to provide self-amusement which will keep him occupied.

On the grow from head to toe. Rapidly growing and increasingly active babies need protein to help the development of all body structures. Gerber Strained Meats are just the thing to provide that protein in the smoothest forms imaginable. Made from special cuts, selected by Armour, they're processed by an exclusive method which protects precious food values and insures that wonderfully smooth, moist texture.

For your baby's well-being: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business . . . our only business!"

The victim of the nation's third largest killer tells what science—and family—can do to return an invalid to a normal life

Perfectly mobile now, Jim visits daughter Nancy, 9, at day camp.

By JAMES WINCHESTER

ten blamed, really don't have much to do with causing strokes. In a recent large-scale study at the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center, only 3.5 percent of several hundred stroke victims were stricken under circumstances that might be described as acute stress. Many of them were asleep, just as I was, when the stroke occurred. Typically, over four times as many housewives had strokes as did professional people.

The word "stroke" has no precise meaning. It's just a way of indicating the symptoms of cerebrovascular accident—obstruction of the circulation of the blood to or in the brain by hemorrhage, by narrowing of an arteriosclerotic blood vessel, or by clot. If the stoppage of blood (which supplies vital oxygen to brain tissues) lasts even a few minutes, it is enough to kill the tissues affected and knock out the things they boss—leg or arm movements, speech, and memory.

If the damaged tissues are on the left side of the brain, the right side of the body is stricken. Injury on the right side of the brain knocks out the left side of the body. The extent of the injury depends on which and how large a region of the brain is affected. Speech is controlled by a dime-size piece of tissue called "Broca's Area." When it is only lightly damaged, there is just a slurring of words, which usually clears up in a few days, as it did in my case.

Why I Had a Stroke

At the Northern Westchester Hospital in Mt. Kisco, N.Y., where I was taken by ambulance from my home, specialists determined the cause of my stroke: the high blood pressure I have had for years had ruptured a weakened part of an artery in my brain, causing hemorrhage. Because I was not unconscious and because my speech, while slurred, was not seriously affected, the doctors reasoned that the bleeding was not extensive, that nature itself had already stepped in to start patching the hole. This was backed up by the lack of blood in my spinal fluid.

Until just a few years ago, doctors generally thought that all strokes were caused by blood-vessel accidents inside the brain itself. But Dr. C. Miller Fisher of Montreal, among others, was baffled by consistent autopsy findings on stroke victims which showed no damage at all to blood vessels above the neck. In the early 1950s, Dr. Fisher, studying 432 autopsies, discovered that, in over a third, one or more of the four neck arteries supplying blood to the brain were narrowed or clotted to such an extent that the tissues in the brain were cut off from nourishment. This was quickly ruled out as a cause of my stroke by tests that showed the blood pressure in my neck arteries to be normal. But in cases where the neck arteries are involved, dramatic new procedures are now being developed.

Then, shortly after Dr. Fisher's proof that not all strokes originated in the brain, a nontoxic radio-opaque dye, which could be injected into the circulatory system, was perfected. By using rapid-fire X-ray equipment, it became possible to follow the dye (injected into either arm or neck arteries), as it surged up through the neck to make its three-second trip to the brain. The dye shows up white on the X-ray film. Where there is a block, a dark shadow appears.

This new diagnostic tool enabled Baylor University's Dr. Michael DeBakey, a noted vascular surgeon, to develop in 1954 a surgical method for correction of a clogged neck artery. Working through a small incision in the neck, Dr. DeBakey clamps off the artery on either side of the obstruction, installing a temporary "shunt" so that blood supply to the brain will be maintained during surgery. He removes the fatty clots which have narrowed the artery channel, and further enlarges the passage by means of a Dacron patch.

Since then, Dr. DeBakey and his associates have performed blocked-artery surgery on several hundred stroke patients. This surgery is now being performed at 20 major medical centers in an evaluation study of its benefits in comparison with "natural" recovery of stroke patients.

The most practical advances in general stroke treatment and prevention today are the new drugs—those that retard blood clotting and those that lower and control high blood pressure. A recent report to the American Heart Association largely credits these drugs with a 22 percent drop in death from strokes among white males in the 45-64 age group. The anticoagulants, used to retard clot formation, boost a stroke patient's chances for survival by nearly one-third, according to a five-year study at the New York Hospital-Cornell and New York University-Bellevue medical centers. In a Mayo Clinic study, the drugs appear to reduce the incidence of second strokes by as much as 75 percent.

The High Price of Neglect

Two years ago, when my blood pressure shot above the 200 mark and I had to be hospitalized briefly, I was given the new drugs to help lower and control it. They worked fine but left me severely depressed. Against my doctor's advice, I stopped them. My blood pressure shot back skyward, and my stroke appears to have been the result. Now, I'm taking them again—two aspirin-size tablets a day—and I am determined to keep on doing so for the rest of life.

Once you have suffered a stroke, you discover that rehabilitation is accomplishing near-miracles. Stroke no longer means the end of a person's useful life. But rehabilitation must begin early, whether in a hospital or at home. Exercise of seemingly useless muscles must begin at once, since inactivity can be more harmful than the original damage caused by the stroke. At first the muscles and nerves in paralyzed parts of the body are as good as ever. It is just that their control centers in the brain are damaged.

But deterioration of muscles and nerves sets in quickly and progresses rapidly when the stroke victim is bedfast or immobile. Other things happen, too. Circulation slows, calcium leaves the bones. Moreover, you can quickly acquire the attitude that you're an invalid. Dr. Anita Isaac, a Kansas physician specializing in stroke rehabilitation, says, "I consider it an injustice to a stroke victim if he isn't standing within 24 hours, either alone or supported."

I was sitting up in bed the first day after my stroke. On the second, I was standing, assisted, though my leg was completely paralyzed. That same day, the hospital's physical therapist began exercising my muscles with gentle massage every two or three hours although I still couldn't move them myself. Before the end of the week, with help, I was getting across to the bathroom. Every day I sat in a chair while my bed was being made.

Comments Dr. Howard Rusk, who heads the New York University-Bellevue Institute for Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in New York City, where I was transferred for intensive physical therapy just ten days after my attack, "If simple physical therapy begins within the first week after a stroke, most victims can be walking and taking care of themselves in six to eight weeks, sometimes sooner."

Caring for the Stroke Patient

The best thing that family members can do for stroke patients, I think, is not to treat them as invalids. My wife, bless her, assumes I can do anything. Somehow or other, though, she always seems to be around when I'm dressing. It's just natural when she casually reaches out to help me with the cuff button on my left sleeve. I don't feel dependent. Believe me, that's important.

Recovery for a stroke victim isn't easy for either the patient or his family. Physically, stroke victims may look and feel fine. But a part of the brain has been destroyed. Only nature and time can train new tissues to take over. Until they do, there are bound to be emotional changes. These should be expected but recognized as temporary. For example, during their recovery periods, stroke victims, almost without exception, are irritable and snappish, often over trifles.

When I first started back to work, I'd dictate letters to my wife, who'd take them down in long-hand. She's not a secretary, and it was laborious work for her. Often, though, I'd have her in tears because she made a simple mistake, such as misinterpreting a word. I would become utterly outraged. Later, I would be bitterly ashamed.

Another thing that stroke victims frequently do in the early stages of recovery is cry. You're not sad. Nothing has upset you. You just start

The Well-Knit Family

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

KNITS, wonderfully warm for fall breezes and the kind of clothing that makes traveling a dream, belong in every wardrobe. Here are four trim knits which can be fashioned at home:

Mother can make herself the sleek shift with slimming cable-stitched columns or the smart junior-sized jacket, both perfect for weekend trips. Moppets will look adorable in the two-piecer—all knit and purl with a block-design panel—which can be worn as a suit or separately. And those teen dolls so popular with little girls today rate no less than a complete knit wardrobe—from hat and coat to pullover and pants.

These snappy basics for any wardrobe (whether you're a living doll or the other kind) are quick and fun to knit. The junior jacket, for example, takes only 21 hours to make.

Fashion a suit or separates for a little miss in sport yarn. Pattern includes sizes 2-8. Cost: under $6. Pattern 7457.

Knit a smart shift with decorative cabled columns in knitting worsted. Instructions included for sizes 32-38. Cost: under $11. Pattern 7032.
